

University of Southern California
Research Advancement Workshop

Grant Opportunities and Proposal Development in the Humanities

Presented by Peter Mancall

Professor of History and Anthropology,
Director of the USC-Huntington Early Modern Studies Institute, and Associate Vice Provost for Research Advancement

This program will be devoted to strategies that can be used to seek external funding in the humanities and social sciences. The primary focus will be on the identification of suitable agencies and the crafting of the application, with particular attention on the narrative component of the proposal. The program is recommended for all faculty members, particularly for assistant professors and recently tenured associate professors. The program will concentrate on preparing individual proposals for agencies such as the National Endowment for the Humanities, the American Council of Learned Societies, and residential research libraries.

WHO SHOULD ATTEND: The program is recommended for all faculty members in the humanities and related fields, and particularly for assistant professors and recently tenured associate professors.
