FROM: Michelle McCarthy

DATE: September 20, 2005

SUBJECT: New Leadership of USC TrojanServices

I am pleased to announce that Dan Stimmler has agreed to accept the position of Associate Vice President of Auxiliary Services. Since the position was vacated in June, Dan has continued in his proactive and innovative approach to the solution of our challenges, and he has continued to work well with all members of the TrojanServices team. Dan is a USC alumnus and has worked for the university for thirteen years. For the past five years he has served as Director of the University Bookstore. During Dan's tenure as director, the bookstore's revenues have grown from $38 million to $56 million per year, making it the largest independent bookstore in the nation.

As we all are aware, the last decade has brought great changes here at USC, and everyone's hard work has been a part of that change. USC enjoys a greater national standing academically than ever before, and it is a time of growth and expansion. Looking ahead, there is the promise of yet greater achievement, and improvement in all areas at USC, including TrojanServices, is absolutely vital for our continued progress.

Please join me in welcoming Dan to his new role.
