

USC LIBRARIES SUPPORT FOR DISTANCE LEARNING

LIBRARY SERVICES FOR DISTANCE LEARNERS

- Consultations with librarians via phone and Internet
- Virtual reference services: e-mail, instant message, and 24-hour text chat
- Full access to the libraries' electronic course reserves
- Course-specific multimedia research guides and Web pages developed at the request of faculty
- Electronic delivery of library materials owned by USC or obtained through interlibrary loan
- Delivery of USC Libraries-owned books via UPS—up to 10 books per semester, delivered approximately within one week of request
- Remote access to USC Libraries' collection of electronic databases, full-text journal articles, and e-books

ELIGIBLE DISTANCE LEARNERS

Although many library services that benefit distance learners are available to all USC students, to be eligible for the complete suite of services—including shipment of books—students must meet one of the following criteria:

- Students enrolled in USC distance learning degree programs; or
- Students enrolled at USC satellite campuses, academic centers, or off-campus cohorts; or
- Students enrolled at USC and residing outside Los Angeles County

USC LIBRARIES STRATEGIC IMPERATIVE FOR TECHNOLOGY AND ACCESS

To provide an intuitive, robust, and flexible library-technology environment that supports learning, teaching, and research at USC. The development of capabilities to support USC distance-learning programs is a key objective under this imperative.
