DEAN'S MERIT SCHOLARSHIPS

The University of Southern California believes that no qualified student should be denied the opportunity to pursue a quality education. Each year, the School of Policy, Planning, and Development awards several merit-based scholarships to master's students. The most notable of these are the Dean's Merit Scholarships, which are awarded to students of exceptional merit to pursue graduate degrees at the School of Policy, Planning, and Development. The Dean's Merit Awards are funded through contributions to the School of Policy, Planning, and Development's scholarship funds. The number of awards granted each year varies depending on the availability of these funds.

Scholarships are awarded at the discretion of the Scholarship Committee and recognize:

- academic merit as determined by cumulative grade point average and graduate test scores
- special contributions made to the planning, public administration, public policy, health administration, or real estate development professions

APPLICATION PROCESS

Scholarship awards are made at the time of admission.

- Awards to new students are generally renewable for a second year assuming satisfactory academic progress in accords with university set standards for graduate students
- Students who are awarded scholarships must complete the majority of their coursework at the campus location where the scholarship originated
- Awards must be used towards a degree program in SPPD
- A Dean's Merit Scholarship Form must be completed by the January 15 deadline
